GSTAAD

Switzerland’s beautiful villages comprising Destination Gstaad are undeniably breathtaking in the Canton of Bern. The ski region is expansive, rambling across classic Swiss countryside, numerous villages, and the Bernese Alps' highest terrain, Glacier 3000. Winter holidays in Gstaad have a long pedigree, offering a considerably more relaxed style of ski sojourn, unlike St Moritz and Courchevel, nevertheless luxurious — it has the exclusive mountaineering club Eagle Ski and its very own Gstaad Yacht Club. In essence, destination Gstaad is an ideal marriage of two diametrically opposing qualities: its reputation as the winter escape of choice for the international jet set, royals, and industrialists, and a laid-back, slowed`-down, rural Alpine idyll — both parts elegantly intertwined in a celebrated ski resort. The likes of Hermes, Brunello Cucinelli, Prada, Ralph Lauren, Louis Vuitton stores, and luxury accommodations are juxtaposed against traditional village architecture and haybarns dotting the forested mountainside. This Swiss ski village, 58 miles east of Geneva, abides by the slogan "Come Up — Slow Down" and has successfully remained the unspoiled, understated high-class retreat, or as an acting legend, Julie Andrews once said: "The last paradise in a crazy world.
