SAN DIEGO

LA JOLLA

San Diego County is a glittering jewel of Southern California, a vast expanse that touches the Mexican border. Its four distinct parts – East County, South Bay, Central San Diego, and North County – each have their own unique character and charm. In North County, affluent coastal towns like Carlsbad, Encinitas, and Oceanside bask in the beauty of the Pacific Ocean's azure waves. East County is a tapestry of small towns, like Alpine, Bonita, and Campo, nestled amidst rolling hills and valleys. South Bay, extending to the Mexican border, is a vibrant mix of cultures and landscapes. Here, one can find cities like Chula Vista, Coronado, and Imperial Beach, each offering a unique blend of American and Mexican influences. Central San Diego, the heart of the county, encompasses the city of San Diego itself, along with its large metropolitan area and many smaller cities and communities. Additionally, 18 Native American tribal reservations, the largest number of Indian reservations in the United States, give San Diego County another layer of cultural richness, standing as a powerful reminder of the resilience of its people.
